Part III DETAILED ACTION

1. This application has been examined, Claims 1-17 are pending in this application.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 14-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kimura et al. (6,447,184) in view of Bunker et al. (5,061,958).

With regard to claim 14, Kimura et al. teaches an operator control panel for an imaging assembly (e.g. col. 18, lines 47-66), the operator control panel comprising: a screen interface having at least one icon which represents a media component of the imaging assembly and a media path section which graphically represents a media path in the imaging assembly (e.g. fig. 18, col. 18, line 47 thru col. 19, line 44, col. 31, lines 3-10, col. 32, line 61 thru col. 33, line 7, col. 35, line 11 thru col. 39, line 8, and col. 43, lines 41-46). Kimura et al. fails to explicitly teach using a touch screen interface. Bunker et al. (In the same field of endeavor, "user interface for a printing system") teaches that it is well known in the art to provide the printing system with a touch screen interface to select icons within a control panel (e.g. figs. 2-4). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the control panel of Kimura et al. with a touch screen as taught as Bunker et al. Because of the following reasons: a) in order to allow the system of Kimura et al. to provide the operator of the printing system with a user friendly interface, allowing the user quicker access to the information by touching the screen; and b) in order to allow the system of Kimura et al. simplify the selection of the data by using the touch screen instead of the keyboard.

With regard to claim 15, the touch screen feature has been addressed on claim 14 above, and Kimura et al. teaches wherein each of said at least icon and said path are displayed in a manner which spatially simulates a location of the component with respect to the imaging assembly (e.g. fig. 18, col. 18, line 47 thru col. 19, line 44, col. 31, lines 3-10, col. 32, line 61 thru col. 33, line 7, col. 35, line 11 thru col. 39, line 8 and col. 43, lines 41-50).

With regard to claims 16-17, the limitations of claims 16-17 are covered by the limitations of claims 14-15 as described above.

Conclusion

4. The following is an Examiner's statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Claims 1-13 are being allowed over the prior art of record.

The prior art of record teaches different ways of displaying information about the media components and the feeding path of the print media, but the prior art of record fails to teach, or suggest the claimed limitations of (in combination with all other features in the claims) an operator control panel or printing assembly having an operator control panel having a touch-screen interface, said touch-screen interface comprising a plurality of first icons which correspond to said plurality of media supply magazines, a plurality of second icons which correspond to said plurality of take-up magazines, and a center section positioned between said first icons and said second icons which corresponds to said printing area, wherein each of said first icons, said second icons and said center section are graphically displayed on said touch-screen interface in a manner which spatially simulates a location of said media supply magazines, said take-up magazines and said printing area of said printing assembly.

Any comments considered necessary by Applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the Issue Fee, and to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the Issue Fee. such submissions should be clearly labeled "comments on statement of Reasons for Allowance".

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

Maekawa (6,010,261) teaches a printer capable of designating the type of recording medium in a medium tray.

Takahashi (5,102,112) teaches a paper feeding device for image forming equipment.
